Nov 17, 2017 · One of the most exciting moments in a pregnancy is when you feel your baby kicking for the first time. However, many mothers, especially those who are experiencing their first pregnancy, aren't always aware of the first kicks. They often mistake them for gas or nerves. Nevertheless, somewhere in the second trimester (sometimes as early

Nov 20, 2021 · Being over 215 cm is very rare. About 1 in 3 million. My country has three instead of the expected 2, and one of them happened to be a patient of mine. Being this tall is very inconvenient. You need a special medical report to drive, something about seatbelts, clothes and shoes don't fit properly, poor blood circulation and so on.
